

Taylurr Swyft

Race: Ugnaught

Role: Tailor/Seamstress

Gender: Female

Hobbies: Sewing, hemming, song writing

Age: 102

Taylurr is known to always carry a sewing kit with her at all times, you never know when there is a need to hem or a stitching emergency in the halls. Taylurr can usually be found in her spacious office, with a large room dedicated to sewing, she can easily find her uniform material, pins, buttons, belt and buckles. In her crafting room there are also containers that hold familiar looking gold, blue, red, and green threads. This short little Ugnaught knew her way around a sewing machine, diligently working on the next outfit as requested by any pilot. In her down time, Taylurr likes to write and sing songs about tailoring and her experiences in life back on Lothal. She's known to sneak holotapes of her latest songs into pilot's pockets from time to time after repairing or creating a new outfit.

Taylurr grew up on the planet Lothal after many years of training to be a tailor. Taylurr would compete against the tailor bots in local competitions hosted by her trade school, she always strived to do better than a droid. She boasted that nothing beats a handmade outfit, the time and attention taken showed her in work, which was far superior compared to what the sewing bots could throw together. Taylurr attended the Taeltor Province trade school on Lothal for many years perfecting her craft, proving time and time again that she was the best seamstress on the planet. Around that same time, the empire was looking for new recruits of all skill levels.

A local imperial officer attended one of Taylurr's sewing competitions and after seeing Taylurr win 1st place, this officer was convinced that Taylurr had the skills necessary to create the dress and battle uniforms worn by the empire. Taylurr was approached by the officer and was shortly recruited into the empire. The officers assigned Taylurr to the maintenance wing along with other maintenance staff and crew, such as the mechanics, cooks, sanitation, etc. Although at the time the Empire was looking for more pilots to fly spacecraft, piloting was never one of Taylurr's strong suits. She much preferred to sit in her room and work diligently on her sewing. After many years and dedication, Taylurr is now recognized as one of the empire's most renowned seamstresses. She took it upon herself to pass down the skills and methods she has perfected over the years to the next lineage of tailors that would follow in her footsteps.

